Champions of Conservancy - Sustaining Members - Guardians of History Recognition Program

History is important, often controversial in its interpretation and impact, but critical to understanding the current conditions and how such became the standard for today's life. Given history's importance and role in shaping the present and future, it requires hard work, care, and effort to ensure it is not lost, decimated, destroyed, or otherwise marginalized. This hard work, care, and effort is done by a thankless number of volunteers, organizations, governments, and others, to achieve the preservation, promotion, and reuse of assets. To these individuals and others much credit is deserved and a special thanks, or recognition, for all they do in this regard. The City of Wildwood recognizes their roles and the need to thank them for their committed efforts. A process to recognize, and thank, these volunteers, organizations, governments, and others has been established by the Historic Preservation Commission and offers an opportunity to recognize excellence in historic preservation.

The Historic Preservation Commission of the City of Wildwood has established three (3) levels of recognition based upon certain criteria determined to be integral in this regard. These criteria and award levels are referenced below for review:
